The Effects of Adult Depression on the Recollection of Adverse Childhood Experiences

Adverse childhood experiences (ACEs) have been linked to numerous negative physical and mental health outcomes across the lifespan. As such, self-report questionnaires that assess for ACEs are increasingly used in healthcare settings. However, previous research has generated some concern over the reliability of retrospective reports of childhood adversity, and it has been proposed that symptoms of depression may increase recall of negative memories. Results of this study indicate that changes in symptoms of depression do not correspond with changes in ACE scores among adults.

EVENTS

The International Association for Relationship Research is hosting 2 mini-conferences in 2019. (Brighton July 18-21 and Ottawa June 21 – 23). Susan Boon would like to invite any colleagues (faculty or students) who do research with a relationship angle of any kind (maybe you study friends or pregnancy or depression in marriage) to consider attending one or both of them. Both have themes, but applications from researchers whose work falls outside those themes are still welcome! Note that the Ottawa conference (come support Canadian conference hosts!) also includes a New Scholar Workshop specifically intended for students and new professionals (post docs, new Assistant Profs, etc.). For more info on IARR or the minis, please contact Susan Boon at sdboon@ucalgary.ca.

Save the Date…. Please mark your calendars – the Prospective Graduate Student Open House for the Clinical and Psychology Programs has been scheduled for February 8-9, 2019.
