

Overcoming Barriers to Graduate School Workshop

Applying for graduate school can be a daunting experience as an undergraduate student, however, many people who identify as part of an underrepresented or non-dominant group may not consider it even an option. We're here to tell you that graduate school can be for everyone - including you! Join us for a one hour workshop, while we'll discuss potential obstacles that you might face while considering the option of going to graduate school, especially if you identify as part of an underrepresented group. We'll discuss strategies to overcome these obstacles and discuss our own journeys and barriers to graduate school. We welcome all students, especially diverse students from a variety of backgrounds including, but not limited to, age, body size, culture, disability, ethnicity, gender, gender identity, Indigenous peoples, language of origin, marital status, national origin, pregnancy and parenting status, race, religion, sexual orientation, and socioeconomic status.

A team of graduate students from the Department of Psychology will present the workshop on November 21 at 12 (noon) in Administration 248 (on the second floor of the Administration building).

If you have any questions about the workshop, please feel free to contact Michelle Zepeda at mszepeda@ucalgary.ca

We look forward to seeing you!
